BEEF FOR NIXON — Canadian butcher Henry Federman of Toronto says he is sending President Nixon $100 worth of beef cuts on ice. He says he is upset over the refusal of a Washington D.C., company to supply the White House with beef steaks. The Washington company blamed Nixon's economy measures for the beef shortage there and sent hamburger instead.

Two Boys Charged In Torture Deaths

HOUSTON (AP) — Two teenage boys face a total of six murder charges after leading police to 23 mutilated bodies and telling a horror story of homosexual torture killings.

Police say they believe as many as seven more bodies may be found.

Murder with malice charges were filed early today against Elmer Wayne Henley Jr., 17, and David Brooks, 18.

They told police they had procured other teen-age boys for homosexual assaults by Dean Corll, 33. Henley told police he shot Corll to death Wednesday.

Henley was charged with two counts of murder for the deaths of Marty Ray Jones, 18, and Charles C. Cobble, 17. Harris County Asst. Dist. Atty. Michael J. Hinton said Jones was strangled with a cord and Cobble was shot to death, both on July 27.

Brooks was charged for the murder of William Ray Lawrence, 15, on July 10. Lawrence was strangled with a cord.

Jones, Cobble and Lawrence are the only victims who have been identified.

On Friday, Henley and Brooks were charged on three counts of murder in San Augustine County, in East Texas. Four bodies, including that of Lawrence, were found there near Lake Sam Rayburn.

The bodies of Jones and Cobble were discovered in a mass grave site at a Houston boat dock that contained 17 bodies.

The two youths also pointed out where two bodies were buried on High Island, near Galveston.

Houston Detective W. L. Young said Henley has admitted killing nine of the victims.

Brooks gave police a long, grisly statement Friday in which he said he thought five bodies were buried on High Island.

"In all, I guess, there were between 25 and 30 boys killed," he said.

Henley told reporters there were fewer victims.

"I never said there was 30 people. I said 24," Henley, who insists on being called "Junior," told reporters as he watched jail trusties dig for bodies on High Island.

Digging was suspended Friday evening because of rising tides, a crowd of sightseers and Brooks' and Henley's failure to locate further graves.

Full Nixon Cash Report Slated

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — California's secretary of state says he has been promised a full financial report next month on President Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign.

Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr., a Democrat, said he expects to get details of millions of dollars in still-secret contributions from Nixon campaign officials on Sept. 28.

"All financial activities of the Nixon campaign will now be brought into the open, and the public will finally receive a full accounting of how money was raised and spent," Brown said Friday.

Brown said he invoked a little-used state law and an opinion from California's Republican attorney general, Evelle J. Younger, in negotiating the agreement with the Finance Committee to Re-elect the President in Washington.

The report will include all money contributed to the Nixon campaign before a new federal law went into effect April 7, 1972, that required disclosure of all contributions, Brown said.

He said Nixon campaign officials have agreed to provide records on contributions made before 1971, although that information may not be ready by Sept. 28.

"Although federal law may not require disclosure of pre-April 7 contributions, California law clearly does require full disclosure of campaign donations no matter when they were received," Brown said in a statement.

An aide to Brown said subsequent reports are expected to include more than $1 million left over from Nixon's 1968 election campaign and held during the interim by Herbert W. Kalmbach of Newport Beach, Calif., Nixon's former personal attorney.

The aide said Kalmbach told Brown some of that money was turned over for use against George C. Wallace in his 1970 campaign for governor of Alabama.

In the past, presidential campaign statements filed with the state dealt only with their California committees.

Brown said the fund-raising and spending procedures of Nixon committees made it "impossible to isolate California money and the Nixon committees have agreed to file reports covering the entire national campaign."

Agnew Records Subpoenaed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Spiro T. Agnew's election campaign and elective office records for the past 11 years have been subpoenaed by the U.S. attorney investigating political corruption in Maryland.

The subpoenas were served on the Maryland Hall of Records and State Board of Election Laws.

A spokesman for the vice president said it would be unlikely Agnew would make a statement on the subpoenas being issued. Agnew is spending a long weekend with singer Frank Sinatra in Palm Springs, Calif.

Morris L. Radoff, state archivist and records administrator, said Friday he was handed a subpoena Thursday for all papers and records pertaining to Agnew and Jerome B. Wolff, a former Agnew aide who has been identified as a principal subject of the investigation.

Going back as far as 1962 in the records would include Agnew's terms as Baltimore County Executive, governor, and both vice presidential campaigns.

But a check with state officials showed records on file only go back as far as 1966, the year Agnew ran successfully for governor.

Radoff said because of the bulk of the records, the U.S. attorney's office was sending a man to the Hall of Records on Monday to examine the documents and to determine which ones will be taken by the attorney's office.

Radoff also said he is to appear Thursday before the grand jury to which U.S. Atty. George Beall is presenting evidence from his investigation of political corruption in Baltimore County and the state of Maryland.

Beall told Agnew 11 days ago that he was included in the probe of possible violation of criminal laws covering extortion, bribery and conspiracy.

Meanwhile, messages of confidence in Agnew were flooding his office, a spokesman said.

J. Marsh Thomson, Agnew's press secretary, said Friday that of the 500 telegrams received near the end of the work day, only 13 were unfavorable.

Agnew's Democratic successor as Maryland governor also expressed strong support for the vice president.

Gov. Marvin Mandel said at a news conference Friday that Agnew was being "tried in the court of public opinion before the grand jury has an opportunity to review the evidence.

"I would be greatly shocked and amazed if the allegations against him (Agnew) were true," Mandel said.

Laird Explains Bombing Reports As 'Not Normal'

CHICAGO (AP) — Melvin R. Laird denies that he authorized falisified reports of secret U.S. bombing in Cambodia but says he started a reporting procedure that was not of "the normal type."

Laird, a former secretary of defense, told newsmen on Friday that the reporting procedure "ran directly to the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, me and the President of the United States."

Laird said the procedure he authorized for reporting the secret 1969 bombings was "not the normal type of reporting procedures used in Vietnam ... but because of diplomatic sensitivity a separate channel of reporting was established."

Laird, now President Nixon's chief domestic adviser, denied that he authorized falsified Defense Department reports. He said the continued government silence on clandestine air operations after the U.S. incursion into Cambodia in April 1970 was a mistake.

He said the air strikes were necessary to clear Cambodian sanctuaries used by the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong.

Laird said secrecy about the operations was requested by officials of the State Department whom he did not name.

The reporting procedure was taken to the National Security Council and approved by him after "total and complete discussion at the highest levels of the White House," Laird said.

Laird talked with newsmen a day after a top secret memo was made public that showed Laird's approval of procedures aimed at hiding the bombings from the news media.

The Senate Armed Services Committee has spent the last three weeks investigating why the Defense Department falsely reported that 3,630 B52 sorties over Cambodia were reported as occuring over Vietnam.

Tiny Water War On Canada Border

POINT ROBERTS, Wash. (AP) — A tiny water war has brought a request for a halt in U.S. water deliveries to Canadian areas near the International Peace Arch, a symbol of friendship between the United States and its northern neighbor.

At the root of the dispute is a local drought and Canadian regulations that prevent Canadian water from being shipped to this tiny American community.

The water commissioners of Point Roberts, a six-square-mile peninsula accessible by road only through Canada, are seeking the water cutoff.

They say adjoining Canadian municipalities could grant help easily. But Canadian officials say the British Columbia and Canadian federal governments both ban the export of water.

Like other areas in the Pacific Northwest, Point Roberts' water supply is dwindling as the result of a prolonged drought.

One official said "not a drop" of measurable rain has fallen in the area since April and wells are running dry.

The water dispute became public Thursday night when the Point Roberts' water commissioners asked the city of Blaine, Wash., to stop water deliveries to nearby Surrey, B.C.

Surrey, a small border community, relies upon larger Blaine for its water supplies. The International Peace Arch is located on the U.S.-Canada border between the two communities.

In addition to requesting the water cutoff, the commissioners discussed the possibility of cutting off water supplies to homes owned by Canadians at Point Roberts.

The community has 850 Canadian residents and 350 Americans. Officials say the Canadians who vacation or live on Point Roberts consume 77 per cent of the water.

Beginning today, 7,000-gallon milk trucks will make 50-mile round-trips from Blaine with water to replenish Point Roberts' tank.

As of late Friday, 225,000 gallons remained in the one-million-gallon tank fed by underground wells.

Water Board Chairman Harry Sames said the community uses 200,000 gallons a day despite rationing.

"We've done all we could to meet with them as neighbor to neighbor and friend to friend," said Commissioner Harry Swanson. "Now, it's up to them."

Clear Skies Favor Nation

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Clear skies favored most of the nation today but inevitable summer thunderstorms dotted scattered areas from the Rockies to New England.

A tornado was sighted in southeast Iowa but no damage or injuries were reported.

Numerous thunderstorms swept over Iowa while other storms were reported in New England and along the south Atlantic coast.

Fog and clouds hung over the Southern California coast and western Washington.

Heat and humidity clung to much of the East.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 47 at Arcata, Calif., to 95 at Phoenix, Ariz.

Prime Rate Hike Curbs Borrowing

NEW YORK (AP) — Many major banks have announced an increase in their prime lending rate from 9 to 9¼ per cent, a new high and the 12th prime rate hike this year.

The increase, announced Friday, involves the minimum borrowing fee banks charge their most credit-worthy corporate customers and will have no immediate effect on mortgage, auto or other consumer loans.

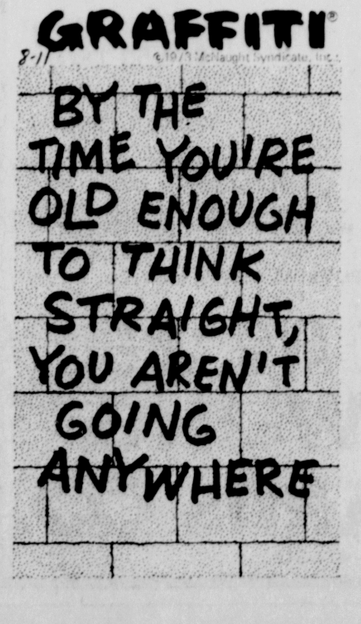

Wall Street reacted negatively to the prime rate rise, with the Dow Jones industrial stock average dropping 9.11 points to 892.38—the blue chip indicator's ninth loss in 10 trading sessions.

Secretary of the Treasury George P. Shultz, however, said the latest prime rate boost was a "desirable" short-term development that would help dampen inflationary loan demand.

"The new rate is very high, but the high rates will cool off the economy," Shultz said at a news conference in Detroit.

Initiating the increase was First National City Bank of New York, the nation's second largest.

At the beginning of this year, the prime rate was only 6 per cent. The repeated increases reflect strong corporate demand for short-term loans to finance plant and inventory growth.

Say Brazil Doesn't Need U.S. Money

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government study suggests that Brazil, with the fastest-growing economy in Latin America and a foreign-aid program of its own, may no longer need direct U.S. economic assistance.

The report by the General Accounting Office urges Congress to consider cutting off direct aid to Brazil and any other countries whose economies have become self supporting.

No federal agency has ever determined at what point a country becomes prosperous enough to have its American aid cut off, said the report.

The GAO made the findings in its study of U.S. aid-to-education programs in Brazil. The report was distributed here this week.

"The basic goal of U.S. development assistance is to assist recipient countries to develop to a degree that external assistance is no longer required," the report said.

The report said Brazil's booming economy provides a good argument for setting a cutoff point for American aid.

Brazil's gross national product has grown at an average rate of 9.9 per cent since 1968, one of the fastest paces in the world.

The country has built up foreign currency reserves totaling $4.2 billion and it has started its own program of foreign aid, making loans and building roads for other South American nations, the report said.

Isrealis Detain Iraqi Airliner

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Israeli jets dodged antiaircraft fire Friday night to pirate an Iraqi airliner in what sources called an unsuccessful attempt to kidnap top Palestinian guerrilla leaders.

However, the guerrillas were not on the airliner, and the Israelis allowed it to return to Beirut after they questioned the 74 passengers and eight crew members for two hours at an Israeli airfield.

The informants said that among the Palestinians the Israelis were trying to capture was Dr. George Habash, head of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine.

Guerrilla sources said Habash was booked on the Baghdad-bound plane with two other guerrillas.

Habash, who is on Israel's most wanted list, changed the group's travel plans at the last minute in what has become a standard security tactic among top guerrilla leaders, the informants said.

Other reports said there were two Iraqi Airlines flights to Baghdad scheduled to leave within minutes of each other and the Israelis diverted the wrong plane. The reports said the Israelis pirated charter Flight 006a on the presumption that it was the regularly scheduled Flight 006, which was delayed because of its late arrival from Vienna.

It was the first time Israel had diverted a commercial Arab aircraft outside Israeli air space. In the past, Israel has denounced Arab hijackings as international crimes that should be dealt with harshly.

The maneuver was carried out with the Israelis' typical clockwork precision minutes after the airliner took off from Beirut. The Israeli jets screamed into Lebanese air space at 9:45 p.m. local time Friday—2:45 p.m. EDT. Two jets peeled out of formation to intercept the French-built Caravelle jetliner, and the other intruders formed a protective umbrella overhead.

Residents of Beirut saw antiaircraft flashes in the night sky and Lebanese air force Mirages scrambled from Koleiat Airfield, 80 miles northeast of Beirut. But the raiders and their abducted airliner were into Israeli air space by the time the Lebanese were airborne.

No one seemed to know just where the plane landed in Israel, although the Palestinian news agency Wafa said it was a military airfield at Haifa, which is on the coast north of Tel Aviv.

Nye Withdraws Agency Support For Pine Creek

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Natural Resources Director William Nye has withdrawn his department's support from the proposed $10 million Pine Creek Watershed flood control project in Lawrence and Scioto counties.

Nye said his decision was based on lack of local support for the project.

"It has long been my belief that where the anticipated benefits of a proposed project are local, the extent of local support for that project must be an overriding factor in determining the merits of the public expenditure," Nye said.

Nye's decision means that $200,000 in state funds appropriated for the project in 1972 will be withdrawn.

U.S. Army 'Transfers' Baldwin

Under military orders, Ralph Baldwin who was seriously injured in a motorcycle accident July 28 has been transferred to Brooks Army Medical Center, his mother reported Friday evening.

Uncle Sam apparently comes first, before family and loved ones, according to the report Mrs. Baldwin gave yesterday.

Ralph's condition had stabilized, although the hospital still reported him "serious" and he had not regained full consciousness. The Army had wanted to transfer Baldwin, but could not get the supervising doctor's permission.

Permission for the transfer apparently came early afternoon Wednesday, because when the Baldwins, who had visited with their son Tuesday night, returned the next day, their son was gone.

University Hospital authorities could only tell the parents that their son may be headed for Texas. It took nearly two days and several anxious telephone calls to discover that he was in Ward 42-H at the Army medical center located in San Houston, Texas.

Baldwin's condition has not changed. He still has not regained full consciousness.

Feeding And Handling Of Feeder Cattle Studied

By George Hamrick

Those first weeks after new feeder calves arrive at the feedlot have been termed by some cattlemen as the most critical period in the birth-to-market lives of beef animals. This is the time when shipping fever and other diseases hit newly shipped calves. Careful feeding and management often make the difference between profit and loss.

Scientists have been focusing major attention on feeder claves, trying to pin down and eliminate stress factors and overcome the threat of shipping fever.

Several studies with new feeder calves were reported at the 1973 Ohio Beef Day at the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center by animal scientist Dr. R.L. Preston and veterinary researcher Dr. C.K. Smith.

In one study, 194 steer claves were used to study the role of roughage source, medication, and housing on the early response of feeder calves.

Chopped grass hay was readily eaten by the calves and resulted in much greater gains during the first week than when calves were immediately offered silage as the only roughage. However, after the first week, calves fed corn silage gained more and were more efficient. Steer calves getting corn silage for the entire trial showed a 42 percent improvement in response over claves that were fed chopped hay.

Preston believes the difference the first week is because the newly arrived calves have not previously been introduced to corn silage and take several days to accept it. Therefore, he thinks feeding chopped hay mixed with corn silage in increasing amounts will help move the calves onto full feed of corn silage more rapidly and result in better early feedlot performance.

The calves were given two types of medication — Aureo S-700 mixed with the feed or sulfaethoxypridizine was used to medicate the water. Medicating the feed with Aureo S-700 significantly increased the gains of feeder claves (25 per cent improvement) but medicating the water did not (the four per cent response was not significant).

As in previous Ohio studies, calves placed immediately on slotted floors gained faster than those placed in a conventional straw-bedded barn. Preston said that in both barns, Charolais crossbred claves gained faster than either Hereford or Angus feeder claves.

A year ago, Smith and Preston revealed a theory that the source of dietary protein might be an important factor in shipping fever. They suspected that the difference in the type of protein fed calves before shipment and that fed after they arrived at the feedlot might be involved. Preliminary research seemed to substantiate the Ohio scientists' theory. This year, another study was initiated with steer calves where half of the animals were creep fed a soybean prior to shipping fever was observed in any of the calves so the results of the study were inconclusive. The scientists hope to conduct additional research to prove or disprove the protein theory as a factor in shipping fever symptoms.

Ohio Beef Day and Cattlemen's Roundup is a specialized field day sponsored annually by the Research Center in cooperation with the Cooperative Extension Service, The Ohio State University, and Ohio Cattleman's Association.

Will fatty foods make you fat? You can be sure they will if you overindulge. Fats are concentrated sources of energy. This means that 2 ounces of fat, for example, will give your body twice as much energy — or calories — as 2 ounces of protein or 2 ounces of carbohydrates. But fats are necessary nutrients. Like proteins and carbohydrates, fats are a basic nutritional component of the food we eat.

Do not shun fats entirely. Instead, protect yourself by keeping your fat intake at moderate levels, or at minimum levels if you have a weight problem. But remember that everyone needs some fat in his or her diet because our bodies depend on fats to perform these important jobs:

Provide energy and thereby release protein for body building and repair;

Carry fat-soluble vitamins A, D, E, & K;

Make up part of the structure of body cells;

Form a protective cushion around vital organs;

Supply an essential fatty acid — linoleic acid.

Since the body does not make linoleic acid, your food must provide it. You'll find it in various oils that come from plants. These are called "polyunsaturated" fats or oils. They include corn, cottonseed, safflower, seasme, soybean and peanut oils. Foods usually made from these polyunsaturated fats include margarine, salad dressings, mayonnaise and cooking oils. Poultry and fish also provide a certain amount of linoleic acid.

Cooks know that fats add flavor to food, and we well know that facts give our meals a stick-to-the-ribs quality. Nutritionists explain that this is so because fats digest slowly, thus keeping food in the stomach longer. Foods that contain substantial amounts of fats are butter, margarine, shortening, cooking and salad oils, cream, most cheeses, mayonnaise, salad dressing, nuts. Meats, whole milk, eggs and chocolate contain some fat. Foods made with fat include cakes, pastries, potato chips and similar snacks.

Foods that are animal products contain a fat-like substance called cholesterol. In addition to the cholesterol in your diet, your body makes a certain amount of cholesterol; it is found in every body cell. Doctors frequently recommend low cholesterol diets for persons with heart disease. Common foods that contain high percentages of cholesterol are egg yolk, shrimp, brains, liver and kidney.

FHA Authority Restored Until October 1

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon signed legislation Friday restoring FHA's authority to insure mortgage loans on single and multifamily dwellings. The interest ceiling was raised to 7¾ per cent.

The authority had lapsed on June 30 when Congress failed to complete action on housing legislation. The stop-gap measure Nixon signed restores the Federal Housing Administration authority until Oct. 1 while Congress tries to finish work on the broad bill and extend the authority longer.

Secretary James P. Lynn of Housing and Urban Development had announced on July 15 plans to raise the interest ceilings from 7 per cent to 7¾ on July 5.

Bull Is Stolen

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — An excited caller told sheriff deputies Thursday night that over $600 worth of property had been taken from him, deputies said Friday.

During the night some cattle rustlers had stolen Ezekiel Releford's 900-pound Holstein bull. Releford said he had recently bought the bull as an attempt to beat meat prices.

4-H On The Go

Congratulations to the new Junior Fair Board members. Those elected for 1974 are: Rhonda Bircher, Molly Hamrick, Scott Harmount, Tim Lett, Tammy Martin, Bobby Minshall and Jane Schein.

Every 4-H member had an opportunity to vote at the fair for the candidate of their choice. Each district, Westfall, Teays Valley, Logan Elm, and Circleville, could have three boys and three girls on the ballot. These candidates had to be going into the 10th or 11th grade. Those eligible were sent an application to be returned to the Extension Office. The present Junior Fair Board selected the candidates based on merit to be placed on the ballot. They were elected for a two year term.

These young men and women meet during the year to help plan the various fair activities. They are assigned responsibilities before the fair and cooperate in every way when something needs to be done.

And So It Grows

By GEORGE HAMRICK

Agriculture

The bagworm drags its home around wherever it goes. The larva inside the bag extends the front part of its body, permitting free use of its forelegs. When the larva becomes full grown, it stops feeding and firmly attaches the bag to a twig. Attachment usually occurs during August.

Pupation takes place inside the bag, and the adult stage appears about four weeks after a larva has stopped feeding. Adult females have neither legs or wings. After mating with a winged male through an opening in the bottom of the bag, the female deposits a mass of eggs inside the bag. Then she wiggles out of the bag and falls to the ground. The eggs remain in the bag during the winter and hatch the next spring, usually the early half of June, but earlier in southern Ohio.

These pests attack a wide variety of plants, but the most damage is done to ornamental arborvitae and juniper.

To control the bagworm, you may prefer to pick the bags of your plants and destroy them, if there are only a few present. Newly hatched larvae can be controlled with insecticides. Such materials as Cygon, Sevin, Spectracide, chlordane, malathion, Dipel, or Dylox can be used. Check the pesticide label for specific details.

Ever wonder why a lightning bug has this unusual feature of producing light as it flies through the night? Actually, it is flashing a mating signal.

The curiosity this mysterious and interesting little beetle has stirred up over the years in all of us, particularly as youngsters, is tremendous. Remember when you would chase them until you had a glass jar half full? Of course, you got a few stumped toes and skinned shins in the process, but that's growing up.

The light in the lightning bug is produced by the oxidation of a substance known as luciferin. Oxyluciferin is formed and light production is instantaneous. The luciferin is not used up, but it is used time and time again.

In comparing the light of a lightning bug with other light, we find that this insect's light is 92 to 100 per cent light rays. A gas flame produces 98 per cent heat and two per cent light rays; an electric arc produces 90 per cent heat and 10 per cent light. Even the sun is said to produce 65 per cent heat and only 35 per cent light.

So, the lightning bug produces no heat rays or ultra violet rays in its process. Just think, if man could produce luciferin synthetically, he could harness a light more efficient than anything we have today.

RalgroOnPar With DES For Beef Cattle

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent
Agriculture

An Ohio study conducted in a commercial feedlot confirms that Ralgro (a growth stimulating hormone) is an effective replacement for diethylstilbestrol (DES) for finishing steers and heifers.

The study, conducted by animal scientist H. W. Newland and Ohio State University graduate student M. E. Mount, was revealed at 1973 Beef Day August 8 at the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center.

Three trials, involving 100 heifers and 300 steers in R. L. Wright's feed lot near Clyde, Ohio, compared stilbestrol (DES) implants with Ralgro implants. Comparisons of DES (a synthetic estrogen used by cattle feeders for nearly 20 years) and Ralgro (a natural estrogen originally isolated from corn molds) have been made by various institutions since the mid-1960's with varying results.

The current Ohio study showed that performance of Ralgo-treated cattle was not significantly different than the improved performance of DES-treated cattle.

In April, the U.S. Food and Drug Administration cancelled approval for use of DES implants in beef cattle. The cancellation was ordered when traces of the synthetic hormone, which has been routinely used to get faster and cheaper gains on cattle, were found in livers.

Fortunately, cattle feeders can switch to Ralgro or other products (Synovex-S, Synovex-H, or MGA) to help achieve more efficient beef production. Although more expensive than DES, the other materials are still profitable.

The results of the latest Ohio study were distributed to producers attending the 1973 Ohio Beef Day and Cattleman's Roundup, sponsored by the Research Center in cooperation with the Cooperative Extension Service, The Ohio State University, and Ohio Cattleman's Association.

European Labor Ills

Inflation in Western Europe is having an effect on the traditional flow of labor from the poorer nations to those with more vibrant economies. Millions of workers are involved in imported labor forces.

Thirty per cent of Switzerland's work force is non-Swiss. Five million or more migrant workers are employed in France and West Germany. Sweden and Austria are other lands offering opportunities to large numbers of foreign workers.

But with the unsettling effects of inflation, frictions between native and migrant workers have increased. A disparity in wages and living conditions between the two groups exists, and becomes more apparent with rising prices and scarcities of commodities.

Hunger strikes in France earlier this year brought the problem into the open. Polls show as many as three-fourths of French citizens are opposed to the high number of migrant laborers. Housing shortages in Holland produced demonstrations in Rotterdam against the allocation of housing to imported workers last year.

These conflicts are without parallel in modern European history. The industrial countries now find themselves in the paradox of needing imported skills but without the available resources to meet the growing demand for goods and services.

This is one of the unforeseen complexities of inflation which economists throughout the continent are working to overcome.

In 1863, the French established a protectorate over the Southeast Asian kingdom of Cambodia.

In 1900, Victor Emmanuel became king of Italy.

In 1935, Nazi storm troopers staged mass demonstrations against Jews in Germany.

In 1945, as the Pacific war was wearing an end, the Allies informed Japan that its surrender offer was acceptable.

Sandbagging Nixon

By JEFFREY HART

However the Watergate drama comes out in the end, one thing is now certain. In policy terms, the Nixon Administration is unraveling like an old sweater. The issues we had supposed adjudicated in the 1972 election have all been reopened. In fact, all along the line, the Administration's liberal opponents are taking advantage of Watergate to reverse the result of 1972. A few startling examples:

(1) Skyrocketing welfare costs were a basic issue in 1972. Governors Reagan and Rockefeller had moved to center stage through welfare crackdowns. Following suit, the Nixon Administration had junked the expensive Family Assistance Plan. It had installed a fiscal conservative and welfare sceptic, Caspar Weinberger, at HEW. It had given Howard Phillips a mandate to cut back at OEO. Now all this has been reversed. Alvin G. Arnett has changed Phillips' course at OEO 180 degrees. Melvin Laird speaks of returning to FAP. At HEW, strong indications exist that Weinberger will be succeeded by liberal civil-rights activist Frank Carlucci. Tough luck, everyone who voted for Nixon in 1972.

(2) At the Justice Department, in response to a widespread anti-permissive consensus in 1972, Richard Kleindienst took over as Attorney General. Now, though completely untainted, he has been forced out by Watergate. His successor is Elliot Richardson, he of the social-worker rhetoric. Liberal environmentalist William Ruckleshaus is slated for a top post under Richardson. He is unassociated with law-and-order. The 1972 election must have occurred in another country.

(3) If anything was clear from the 1972 vote, it was a massive rejection of George McGovern's neo-isolationism. He was on the defensive here throughout the campaign. The election has to be interpreted as a ratification of Nixon's realpolitik in Southeast Asia and elsewhere.

Now, in a series of startling moves, Congress is seeking to reverse this result. The August 15 deadline for the Cambodian bombing, agreed to by Nixon, removes all of his diplomatic leverage there. The Senate Armed Services Subcommittee has eliminated from the defense budget key strategic weapons systems viewed last year by the Administration as vital to the balance of power, post-SALT. The important Trident submarine program has been cut back. Thus it appears that we are going to get more "welfare" and less national security, even though Nixon won the election on the opposite position.

(4) The Senate has now authorized $3.9 million for the Office of Technology Assessment. In the absence of resistance in the House, or a veto from a Waterlogged White House, this institution could come into existence. Though ostensibly designed to provide Congressmen with technical information on things like lasers, nuclear weapons and the like, the OTA will really be a sort of counter-Department of Defense, full of doves and Teddy Kennedy courtiers.

Unless the Administration can get on top of all this, the President will find himself a sort of hollow man, stuffed full of the discredited liberal policies he defeated in 1972.

If that occurs, he might well regard it as the lesser humiliation, or indeed as a kind of triumph in adversity, to deal his liberal tormentors a final solar-plexus punch by allowing Spiro Agnew to become President before 1976.

Business World

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Evidence builds that Americans, including professional economists, businessmen and even some government officials, are resigning themselves to a future of rising prices.

Statements and observations by people in every walk of life suggest that, in varying degrees, they believe it is futile to anticipate a return to the 1 and 2 per cent inflation sought in years gone by.

Morever, they are acting on their premises. Escalator clauses are being built into more contractual agreements, not just between labor and management but in Social Security and life insurance and even home mortgages.

Arthur Burns, who as chairman of the Federal Reserve Board is in as powerful a position relative to inflation as almost any man in America, was quoted in recent weeks as saying that "supply and demand forces in the world economy can swamp anything that the Federal Reserve does to curb inflation."

Herbert Stein, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, has conceded his disillusionment with past price restraint efforts and has become more pessimistic about price stability for the immediate future.

"We are going to be continuously confronted with choices between higher prices and shortages," he told the American Bar Association this week. Earlier, he told the Joint Economic Committee, "We have before us a period of a strong tendency to higher prices."

Argus Research Corp., which wholesales much of the economic research and investment advice used by stockbrokers, noted in its latest weekly staff report that:

"The past couple of weeks have been marked by a growing recognition that a relatively high rate of inflation has become a permanent way of life in the United States."

Noting the remarks by Burns snd Stein, it added: "The extent to which the durability of relatively rapid inflation has become accepted is the willingness of government officials to 'fess up' to the fact.

"As the ones charged with the maintenance of economic stability, government officials have traditionally been loath to admit publicly that inflation will continue, even though deep in their hearts they know that it will."

First National City Bank, one of the most influential commercial banks in the world, observes in its Monthly Economic letter that the unprecedented rise in borrowing costs is tied to expectations of future inflation.

"The steep rise in short-term interest rates reflects the corresponding climb in inflation expectations," it said, forecasting that "a slowdown may depress rates, but future inflation is the key."

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

X-rays of the breast, or mammography, have been a great boon to the early detection, treatment and control of cancer of the breast. By this method, non-cancerous cystic masses can almost definitely be differentiated from those that are malignant.

In addition, the technique of thermography sensitively measures the heat of the skin surfaces of the breast. This, too, is of great value in the diagnosis of breast tumors.

Now, an additional diagnostic aid has been tried by Dr. Bernard A. Eskin, at the Philadelphia Medical College of Pennsylvania.

It is known as the "iodine uptake study" which previously has been so valuable in the diagnosis of thyroid disease.

This new test seems to be a highly sensitive method which, in addition to those already in use, will add to the lifesaving statistics about cancer of the breast.

Microscopic photographs can now be taken of the cells that surround an ulcer of the stomach and the duodenum.

Pictures of these tiny areas can show the presence of damaged cells and their deterioration.

Dr. Shirley Siew has been able to demonstrate these changes in cellular tissue, giving doctors a better understanding of the complexities of peptic ulcers.

Areas of the body in the deepest, closed cavities are revealing their secrets because of the many ingenious devices that can be introduced for their exploration.

The panreas is a small, but very important, gland in the body. It lies behind the stomach and plays a vital role in diabetes and in other hormone disturbances.

Only recently, Dr. Eugene I. Winkelman, a specialist in gastro-enterology at the Cleveland Clinic in Ohio, added valuable information about the relationship between the pancreas and excess fat in the blood stream.

Dr. Winkelman and his colleagues observed that pancreatitis (inflammation of the pancreas) was intimately related to high levels of triglycerides, or fatty substances, in the blood stream.

This observation is important in the treatment of a type of pancreatitis that previously resisted treatment.

The newer knowledge that a low fat diet can reduce the severity of this kind of pancreatitis, and prevent its recurrence, is of extreme importance in the practice of medicine.

This kind of research constantly emphasizes that grants to dedicated scientists must continue uninterrupted.

NEW YORK (AP) — Things we could all do without:

Musical liquor bottles that play "How dry I am."

Colored bedsheets printed with chessboard patterns or festooned clusters of writhing snakes.

Gold and diamond studded bracelets — four in a set — for pampered pet dogs.

Smutty phrases on sweatshirts for teen-agers.

People with a high I.Q. (intelligence quotient) who fail at anything they try because it isn't backed up by a high M.Q. (motivation quotient).

Professional athletes in any sport who go on strike unless they are paid a salary amounting to nearly half their weight in gold each season.

Television actors who fell 250-pound thugs with a single karate chop that actually wouldn't give a headache to an ailing midget.

The 14-to-15 ounce pound popular with many butchers. Whatever happened to the old-fashioned 16-ounce pound?

Rainbow-hued capsules of medicine that do you no more good than a sniff of sugar.

Adults who tacitly condone their children's going to marijuana puffing parties because they say it might keep the kids from doing something worse.

Rundown vacation resorts where the bedbugs outnumber the mosquitoes and fare better.

Schoolteachers who go to summer school only with the hopeful aim of marrying a seedy Ph.D.

Fingerprints on the icing of your birthday cake.

Cocktail parties at which the host pours the first drink from a triple-shot glass and all the rest from a thimble.

Teen-agers who describe everything from a sunset to a car accident with the same phrase: "Isn't it gross?"

The monologues of dentists when they are trying to take your mind off what they are doing to you.

Ladies who wear so much mascara it runs in the rain.

Fearful passengers who have to be three sheets to the wind before they will climb aboard an airplane.

The degrading cupidity of contestants on a television giveway show getting excited over the prospect of getting something for nothing — the New American Dream.

From these and other burdensome afflictions of mind and spirit, deliver us. Amen.

Interest Rates Raised Again

NEW YORK (AP) — First National City Bank, the nation's second largest bank, said Friday it was boosting its prime, leading rate from 9 to 9¼ per cent, effective Monday.

The prime rate is the minimum borrowing fee banks charge their most credit-worthy corporate customers. The increase means that big business will find it more expensive to obtain short-term loans for expansion.

The prime moved up to 9 per cent only a few days ago from 8¾ per cent.

Citibank was the first bank to announce the quarter-point increase in the prime, but observers expected the boost to become industrywide within days.

They'll Do It Every Time ®

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Widow Says She's "In Love"

DEAR ABBY: Please don't think me foolish, but I am a 55-year-old woman (widowed nine years) and I have fallen in love for the first time in my life. (My mother picked out my first husband, and my one regret was that SHE never had to live with him.)

This man I love (I'll call him Bob) was separated from his wife when we met. He says he loves me and I believe him, but he keeps going back to his wife. He is 58, but his physical condition is like a 30-year-old.

Right now Bob says he is definitely going to file for a divorce. I asked him when, and he said, "Not until Nov. 19, because our 25th wedding anniversary is Nov. 18th, and I don't want to slap her in the face before then."

What is wrong? I bend over backwards to please this man, but I must be doing something wrong because after loving him for two years, I still don't have him.

A CONN. MESS

DEAR MESS: If you ever land Bob you will have a very considerate husband. Be patient until after his 25th wedding anniversary, and if he doesn't make the break then, come Thanksgiving, cook his goose.

DEAR ABBY: First of all, let me tell you that I have five children. My husband and I are getting a divorce and he can't help me, so I am going to have to raise these children alone. After my husband left, I found out I was pregnant. I am too far along now for an abortion.

I don't want this baby. Can I give it up for adoption? I have given this a lot of thought and have decided if I were to keep it, it wouldn't be fair to the five children I have, nor to the one that's on the way.

I believe every child should have two parents who really wants it. Please don't give me a lecture. My mind is made up. Just tell me where to go to give it away.

NEEDS HELP NOW

DEAR NEEDS: No lectures from me. I agree, every child should have two parents who really want it. (Sometimes, one is enough.) Get in touch with your County Welfare Information Center. Also, ask your doctor for guidance. There are plenty of couples who desperately want a child.

DEAR ABBY: I am a single girl living in New York City. I have my own car and I am dating a guy who doesn't have a car. It takes about an hour and fifteen minutes from his house to mine using public transportation, but it's only 15 minutes by car.

I find myself in the position of picking him up and taking him home whenever we go out.

Compounding the problem is the fact that I must use the toll bridge to get to and from his house, which adds up considerably for me.

I find this a very difficult adjustment as I have been accustomed to having my dates pick me up and take me home. Should I continue this pickup and delivery service? He's not a native New Yorker, and is afraid to take the subway late at night.

DOOR TO DOOR SERVICE

DEAR DOOR: Thirty minutes in an automobile beats two and a half in the subway, no matter who does the driving. If he hasn't offered to pay for the toll, suggest it. If he can't or won't pay for it, you will have to decide whether dating him is worth the portal to portal service you're providing.

Pork Prices Said Rising Too Sharply

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration is voicing concern over the sharply rising cost of pork, but has ruled out trying to halt the increase with a price freeze.

Kenneth Fedor of the Cost of Living Council said in an interview Thursday that some of the increase in pork prices may be attributed to the beef shortage. But that alone does not explain the hikes, he said.

"We are getting more supply, but the price continues to go up," he said, noting that the price of hogs has jumped from $37.31 per hundred pounds in the first week of June to $59.13.

President Nixon lifted the freeze on all food prices except beef on July 18. The beef ceiling will be removed on Sept. 12, and Fedor, director of the council's Office of Food Price Monitoring, said there is no prospect of restoring the freeze on pork prices.

He said the administration feels food prices in general have been advancing too sharply since the freeze ended. And the supermarket price of beef is expected to increase by 10 per cent once the ceiling on beef is lifted, he said.

And despite that freeze and the fact some cattlemen are withholding their stock from the market until prices rise, Fedor said there is no nationwide beef shortage.

The council says the beef supply is 80 to 85 per cent of normal. "It's not as much as we would like to see, but it doesn't fit the definition of shortage that a lot of people seem to be using," Fedor said.

See Guard Strike At Ohio Prisons

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A guard at the Chillicothe Correctional Institute predicted Friday that a widespread guard strike could occur in Ohio at any time.

Frank Upton said a guard walkout at all of the state's correction facilities is a possibility.

"They're tired of being jocked around and played with," he said. "I would expect it to happen at any time."

Upton and five other prison guards met with newsmen in front of the Statehouse Friday.

Upton said that the guards were in the same boat with the inmates in that neither knows where they stand.

He criticized Corrections Chief Bennett Cooper, whom he said tried to teach new guards psychology, but nothing about the practical responsibilities of running a cellblock.

"There is hardly any training for new guards," he said. "They don't have the slightest idea what they are there for."

Upton, a Teamsters Union official, said he was speaking for all corrections guards. He said that the guards were on the same side as the inmates in current fray.

"We're on the same side with the inmates in this," Upton stated. "They don't give them anything to do, and there is little effort to train them for making it on the outside."

A guard at the Marion facility, Guy Lingo, said guards are poorly paid as well as improperly trained.

Upton said an advisory committee report on training guard personnel had been given to Cooper in November, 1971, but has never been implemented.

State Sen. William Bowen, D-9 Cincinnati, who toured the Southern Ohio Correctional Facility Thursday with four other members of Gov. John Gilligan's citizens' task force on corrections, said he found "a multitude of sins."

Gilligan has backed Cooper in the matter saying that the maximum security facility at Lucasville should never have been built in the first place because it is too large and too isolated.

Butz Won't Exercise Powers To Raise Some Food Prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz says he doesn't intend to exercise the sweeping powers given him in the new farm bill to control food prices.

Butz commented at a news conference Friday shortly after the White House announced that President Nixon had signed the bill.

Nixon said the landmark legislation should spur full production, help fight inflation, protect farmers against risks and ultimately benefit taxpayers and consumers.

The measure gives Butz almost unlimited authority to raise food prices.

Asked if he intended to exercise that authority, Butz noted that the administration had not asked for the power.

"Regardless of legislation, no member of the Cabinet has unlimited authority in the executive branch of government," he said. "Even Earl Butz is not so rash as to fly in the face of the President on an item like this.

"What this authority gives is really authority to make recommendations to the President. As you all know, decision-making on things like this is a joint process."

When it was pointed out to him that the bill provides that the President shall carry out his recommendations, Butz replied, "If I were president in a situation like that, and the secretary of agriculture made a recommendation that I distinctly objected to, I would probably get another secretary of agriculture."

The bill requires the President to make "appropriate adjustments" in the top prices of certain food items that the secretary of agriculture certifies to be in short supply without any means of boosting supplies. The items include meat, poultry, vegetables, fruit and other farm products except forestry and fishery products.

While Butz was downplaying his role under the bill, Rep. Harold V. Froehlich, R-Wis., author of the provision, released a letter to him saying the legislation required that he assume a responsibility "that you cannot avoid" even though his actions may prove temporarily unpopular with some interests.

General Telephone Negotiations Set By Federal Agent

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Federal mediator Howard Hughes has scheduled another negotiating session by General Telephone Co. and the Communication Workers of America Wednesday in a renewed effort to end a four-week strike.

Meetings with Hughes were suspended Aug. 2 after five sessions failed to produce any progress in the dispute over wages and job security.

MR. AND MRS. TIMOTHY ALAN WEAVER

Trinity Lutheran Church Scene Of July 14 Wedding

At an evening wedding in the Trinity Lutheran Church July 14, Miss Linda Lee Conkright became the bride of Mr. Timothy Alan Weaver.

Officiating at the 7:30 p.m. ceremony uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold R. Conkright, Route 5 and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Weaver, Route 2, Shelby, was Rev. Carl G. Zehner.

The young couple exchanged vows and wedding bands before an altar adorned with white gladioli and crysanthemums, accented with baby's breath.

Mrs. Thomas Downing, organist and Miss Jane Lessiter, vocalist, presented a program of music preceding the marriage ceremony. Vocal selections included "The Wedding Song," "The Lord's Prayer," "A Time For Us" and "I Believe."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white Nottingham scalloped, beribboned lace. The gown featured a high neck of lace, a slightly raised waistline and deep-cuffed full bishop sleeves. Her cathedral length veil of illusion outlined in matching scalloped lace was held by a Nottingham lace headband. She carried a full bouquet of white roses, daisies and baby's breath, accented with greenery and ribbon streamers.

Miss Roseann Young, a schoolmate of the bride from West Chester, Pa., served as maid of honor. She wore a princess-style gown of multi-floral sheer polyester over yellow polyester. A bow headpiece and hearthside basket brimming with white daisies completed her costume.

Similarly attired were bridesmaids, Mrs. Steven Franzese, of Montour Falls, N.Y., and Mrs. Donald Weaver, Mansfield, sister-in-law to the groom. They carried wicker baskets filled with white and yellow daisies.

Serving as flower girl was Miss Karyn Fritz, a cousin of the bride and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Fritz, Schiller Park, Ill. She wore a floor-length gown of multi-floral polyester over yellow polyester and carried a small hearthside basket with white and yellow daisies.

Ring bearer was Jeffrey Welsh, the bride's cousin from Troy, Mich., and son of Mr. and Mrs. William Welsh. He carried the couple's wedding rings to the altar on a pillow of white satin.

Serving his cousin as best man was Gene Weaver, Shelby. Ushering duties were performed by Roger Weaver, of Shelby and Donald Weaver, of Mansfield, both brothers of the groom.

Mrs. Conkright wore a pale blue street length dress of polyester with beige accessories for her daughter's wedding. The groom's mother was attired in a royal blue short-sleeved gown, also street length, accented with white accessories. Both mothers wore rainbow-hued multi-floral corsages.

The reception was held immediately following the ceremony in the Lutheran Parish House. Hostesses were Miss Sally Weaver and Miss Peggy Weaver, sisters to the groom, and Mrs. James McKelvey, from Camp Hill, Pa. Mrs. Myron Gwinn, the bride's cousin from Pleasant Ridge, Mich., stood at the guest book.

For a wedding trip to Canada, the bride wore a floor-length white Dacron gown with stripes of peach-colored flowers.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Weaver now reside at 164 S. Diamond St., Mansfield.

The bride is a graduate of Douglas Freeman High School, Richmond, Va., and is a student at Mansfield General Hospital School of Nursing.

Her husband graduated from Shelby Senior High and is a machine operator at Peabody-Barnes in Mansfield.

Out of town guests at the wedding were from Virginia, Michigan, Illinois, New York, Pennsylvania and northern Ohio.

Army Spying Program Rescinded

HEIDELBERG, Germany (AP) — The U.S. Army's European headquarters has ordered the 8th Infantry Division to stop a special antidissent program that the press found out about.

The Army command, which oversees 200,000 American troops in West Germany, also denied reports that it is intensifying intelligence operations to spy on the so-called "GI underground."

This headquarters is not directing an intensified military counterintelligence program against underground activities within the United States Army, Europe," a statement said Thursday.

The command refused to say whether it is continuing surveillance and wiretapping to check on civilian and military dissidents. Reports of such surveillance have touched off criticism in Washington and among West Germans.

The 8th Infantry program, outlined in a directive dated July 23, was aimed at both military personnel and "civilian extremists." It directed soldiers to report the name, rank, unit and race of any persons involved in such "indicators of dissidence" as complaining to congressmen and the news media and attending "extremist meetings" outside Army premises.

The headquarters said the directive was rescinded because "guidance on dissent contained in Army regulations is considered sufficient and soldier dissent within the command is presently at a very low level.

"The major concern with commanders is with unlawful acts such as espionage and sabotage to include bombing, arson and damage to equipment."

Caesar's Creek Second-Guessing Nixed By Brown

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Ohio Atty. Gen. William Brown said Thursday he will not second guess any court decision on the feasibility of building dams on the east fork of the Little Miami River and Caesar's Creek.

"If it is shown that the environmental damage will be minimal or nothing and the greater weight of evidence is that Ohioans will benefit more from completion of the projects, I am sure the court will rule they should be finished," he said.

Ohio has brought a series of injunctions against the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers for violating federal statutes.

A hearing on a Brown motion for a temporary injunction against the projects is scheduled Monday in federal district court here.

Reds Lash Cards For 8-4 Victory

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Cincinnati's Big Red machine is in high gear again and is getting help along the way.

The Reds, making the sagging St. Louis Cardinals their victims Friday night, capitalized on three errors and four unearned runs en route to an 8-4 victory.

The loss was the fifth in a row for the Cardinals, who have tottered since losing ace pitcher Bob Gibson to injury last Saturday.

Cincinnati combed the Cards' Rick Wise for six hits in four innings but needed a fielding lapse on the part of rookie shortstop Mike Tyson to rally from a 2-0 deficit.

Tony Perez' single made it 2-1 during a four-run Cincinnati fifth, then Tyson dropped Joe Torre's throw for a force play and opened the gates for more.

Wise, 13-7, was still around two innings later when Torre's throw hit Johnny Bench in the back and helped set up another four-run salvo that put Cincinnati out of reach.

The hard-hitting Cincinnatians' 12 hits included a two-run pinch single by former Cardinal Phil Gagliano off reliever Al Hrabosky in the seventh.

Left-hander Ross Grimsley was the winner, going six innings before Pedro Borbon finished up.

A two-run Cardinals second featured a walk to Torre, Ken Reitz' double, a single off the bat of Bernie Carbo and a double play ground ball by Tyson.

Lou Brock led off the St. Louis fifth with a triple and scored on Ted Sizemore's bunt single, but the Cardinals' threat perished when Sizemore and Ted Simmons were doubled up on Simmons' grounder.

Jack Billingham, 15-8, of the Reds, and Reggie Cleveland, 12-6, are scheduled to pitch in the second game of a three-game series tonight.

There are knuckleballs and there are knuckleballs ... and then there's Phil Niekro's knuckleball.

"I think his knuckleball was moving more tonight than when he pitched the no-hitter," said Atlanta catcher Paul Casanova after handling—or rather trying to handle—Niekro's teaser in a 5-4 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates Friday night.

Niekro's control wasn't as sharp as it was last Sunday when he pitched a no-hitter against San Diego, but his pitches did more dancing this time.

"He threw one pitch that I didn't see until it hit my hands," said Casanova.

The knuckleballs that didn't knuckle gave Niekro trouble. Willie Stargell and Richie Zisk took advantage of the fat pitches and blasted home runs to make the game close.

In the other National League games, the Houston Astros beat the Chicago Cubs 6-4; the Cincinnati Reds downed the St. Louis Cardinals 8-4; the San Diego Padres nipped the Montreal Expos 4-3; the Philadelphia Phillies tripped the Los Angeles Dodgers 5-3 and the New York Mets trimmed the San Francisco Giants 7-1.

Run-scoring singles by Frank Tepedino and Marty Perez in the ninth inning gave Atlanta a 5-2 lead and helped Niekro withstand Stargell's two-run homer in the Pittsburgh ninth, his 33rd this year.

Astros 6, Cubs 4

Tommy Helms' two-run homer plus a pair of run-scoring singles by Bob Watson helped Houston beat Chicago 6-4. It was the sixth straight loss for the faltering Cubs, onetime leaders of the National League East who now are in fourth place.

Padres 4, Expos 3

Fred Kendall brought San Diego from behind with a two-run homer in the third inning to give the Padres a 4-3 decision over Montreal. Kendall's blast erased a 3-2 Montreal lead.

Phillies 5, Dodgers 3

Rookie Mike Schmidt slugged a three-run homer in the seventh inning and added a solo blast in the ninth, giving Philadelphia a 5-3 triumph over Los Angeles. The loss cut the Dodgers' lead to 2½ games over Cincinnati in the National League West race.

Mets 7, Giants 1

Tom Seaver belted a two-run double and took over the National League strikeout lead to pace New York over San Francisco 7-1. Seaver struck out seven batters to bring his season's total to 175, surpassing Steve Carlton of Philadelphia, who has 171.

Top Golfers Dog Iverson In PGA Clash

CLEVELAND (AP) — Jack Nicklaus. Tom Weiskopf. Sam Snead. Mason Rudolph.

The feared footsteps of pro golf's time-tested names were dogging young Don Iverson today in the third round of the Professional Golf Association tournament. The calm youngster paid them no heed.

"I'm not even thinking about them," said the 27-year-old who weathered second round pressure Friday for a 72, matching Rudolph for the lead at threeunder-par 139.

"I'm not concerned who I'm playing with," said the thirdyear tour regular. "I'll just go out and play the course."

That's some kind of confidence for the winner of one satellite event, considering he's up against four veterans who have a collective victory total of 148.

Rudolph, who had a 70 in the second round, owns six victories.

Nicklaus, riding a 68 into a share of third place at 140 with Gibby Gilbert and Dan Sikes, has 48 tour triumphs.

Tom Weiskopf, gunning for his sixth title in his last 10 tournaments, and tied at 141 with Tony Jacklin and Dave Stockton, has won 10 times.

And then there's Snead, the legendary West Virginia hillbilly with an unprecedented 84 victories in his 40 tour seasons.

Sam fired a second straight par 71 over Canterbury Golf Club's lush 6,852 yards and was in a logjam at 142. Still, he dismissed his title chances with:

"If everybody else on the course drops dead, I can win.

"I'm not going to lose any sleep over this one," drawled Snead, at 61 more than twice the age of Iverson. "I'll go out there and play it hole-by-hole right down to the wire."

It took a score of 149 to survive to the nationally-televised (ABC) final rounds today and Sunday. And the cut caught Arnold Palmer.

Tribe Rips Rangers For 8-1 Win

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP)— Even oldtimers like Gaylord Perry, who is a tender 35 years of age, can get into bad habits which should be some consolation for young David Clyde, who suffered the biggest bombing in his brief career Friday night.

Cleveland coasted to an 8-1 victory over the Texas Rangers on Perry's six-hitter as he ran his record to 12-15.

Perry won 24 games last year to capture the Cy Young award. He got off to a stumbling start this season, but won his last four games, thanks to something he and pitching coach Warren Spahn noticed.

"He (Perry) started coming back over the top with his pitches," Spahn said. "He had gradually been lowering his delivery...It was sort of an unconscious thing. We looked at films and decided that's what his trouble was."

Spahn said "we haven't been getting him many runs this year, but we really didn't get him any last season."

Spahn, who was inducted into the Hall of Fame Monday, said Perry has "better control, a better slider and keeps the ball down better."

"IT'S A GIRL.."—Beneath this heavy coating of mud is pretty girl-jockey Donna Hillman. When her mount, FATED, faded in stretch run of first race at Gulfstrean Park, the young lady rider acquired an unwanted mudpack provided by a tropical shower.

Surprise Offense Aids North Win Over South, 25-0

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — A last-second field goal, a goal line stand and a surprise offense spelled victory Friday night for the North over the South in the annual Ohio High School All-Star football game.

That was the analysis, anyway, by North head coach Dan Flossie of Akron Garfield after his team had whipped the Southerners 25-0 to take a one-game lead in the series.

Apparently South head coach Ken Amlin of Dayton Patterson wasn't as sure as Flossie of the reasons for the outcome.

"I thought we could do something in the second half," Amlin said after the game. "I couldn't understand how the complexion changed so quickly, both offensively and defensively."

The Northerners, who travel to Hershey, Pa., next Saturday night to play Pennsylvania's best, could muster only three points in the first half.

But it was that last-second field goal by Bob Brudcinski of Fremont Ross, Flossie said after the game, that put the North offense in gear.

"Then they weren't ready for our pro-set offense," the coach said.

The North, with James Harrell of Oregon Clay, Rob Lytle of Fremont Ross and James Bolden of Akron East doing the work, tore apart the Southern defense in the second half.

Harrell scored two touchdowns, one on a 31-yard run, and ended the game with 77 yards on nine carries.

The North's three touchdowns came in the fourth quarter.

The North rolled up 208 yards on the ground and another 68 passing, while the Rebels picked up only four yards rushing.

Two South quarterbacks, Art Yaroch of Columbus Watterson and Kirk Lewis of Dayton Wright, completed eight of 15 passes for 102 yards.

The South's only serious scoring threat came midway into the second quarter when the North fumbled at its own 29.

The South moved the ball as close as the five yard line, but then lost ground in a 32-yard field goal attempt by Bob Cruse of Clayton Northmont that was short.

Dolphins Have 'We'll Win' Attitude

MIAMI (AP) — The Miami Dolphins won all 17 games last year by having the best offense and defense in the National Football League, but their greatest strength may be mental attitude as they attempt to repeat as Super Bowl champions.

When asked if the players had the maturity or were taught it, Coach Don Shula said, "I think it's a combination."

The $26,000 worth of playoff spoils enjoyed by each player after the 14-7 trouncing of Washington in the Super Bowl apparently changed nothing.

"The attitude has been great in camp," said Shula. "They reported in fine physical condition and with a great mental attitude. All of them are working."

There were no apparent flaws, even in bench strength, on the basically young team of last season. After hours of reviewing game films, Shula has found no reason to make any major lineup or roster changes.

He is trying to field the first team to win back-to-back Super Bowls since Green Bay won the first two. People called those teams part of a dynasty built by Vince Lombardi, but Shula grimaces when somebody suggests he might be on the verge of the same thing.

"We'll let others talk about our football team," he replies, gritting his teeth at the word "dynasty" the same as he does the word "loss." Neither word belongs in his vocabulary.

The facts speak for themselves.

Miami rushed for 2,960 yards, an NFL record, with fullback Larry Csonka getting 1,117 and Mercury Morris 1,000. No other NFL team in history has had two 1,000-yard runners in the same season. "Substitute" Jim Kiick gained another 521 yards.

Quarterback Bob Griese, who suffered a broken leg in the fourth game of 1972, ranks fifth on the active American Conference passing list. Seemingly ageless Earl Morrall replaced him for 10 regular season games and led the AFC by completing 7.3 per cent of his tosses for touchdowns and by gaining an average of 9.07 yards per throw.

Paul Warfield is considered by many to be the best wide receiver in the game, and he is complemented by Ron Sellers, Howard Twilley and Marlin Briscoe—all proven veterans.

Larry Little has been named the outstanding lineman in the AFC three times by the NFL Players Association. His fellow linemen are all proven veterans—center Jim Langer, guard Bob Kuechenberg, tackles Norm Evans, Wayne Moore and Doug Crusan and tight ends Jim Mandich and Marv Fleming.

Safeties Jake Scott and Dick Anderson are both All-Pro. End Bill Stanfili was AP All-NFL, running mate Vern Den Herder All-AFC. Garo Yepremian made 17 of 18 field goal attempts inside the 40 yard line last year. Punter Larry Seiple averaged 39.9 yards per kick.

Merchants Rip DuPont In Slow Pitch Tilt

Circleville Merchants No. 1 blasted DuPont E Shift, 17-3, in slow pitch softball game Friday at Ted Lewis Park.

Duke Weffler was the winning hurler with Jim Weaver taking the loss for DuPont.

Tom Bowers, Rojer McConnell, Gary Leisey, Harold Smith and Mick Tomlinson were the big hitters for the Merchants. Weaver, Boyd and Tom Minor had the hits for DuPont.

New Moto-Cross Track Opens At Greenfield

The Fruitdale Sportsmen are completing a new one and one-half mile Moto-Cross track five miles south of Greenfield.

The track features natural obstacles, hills, curves and jumps. There is a large clubhouse and modern restaurant at the site. It is located on Moxley Road, one-half mile west of Route 41.

Patriots Outlook Dark, Most Feel

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — Chuck Fairbanks, the new head coach of the hapless New England Patriots, may not believe everything he reads. But there are some things he can't miss as he prepares for his National Football League debut.

A bookmaker in Las Vegas lists the Patriots as 100-1 to make the Super Bowl, and even some loyal fans think the odds should be more like 100,000-1.

One computer fed various data figures New England won't win a game, at least during the regular season, and some fans agree with the electronic brain.

Fairbanks, who left college coaching security at Oklahoma to take over as a general manager and coach with a lucrative contract in the pro ranks, refuses to criticize the Patriots individually, but knows what he is up against.

"We don't have the talent to be a contender, so we just have to try to get the best from what we have in every game," Fairbanks says.

Fairbanks, the sixth coach in Patriots' history, is inheriting a team which had a 3-11 record and scored just 192 points while allowing a whopping 446 last fall. With figures like that, there can hardly be anything but improvement.

"We need a lot of improvement to be a good team," Fairbanks said after the Patriots dropped an exhibition opener to San Francisco 20-7 and then rallied for a 17-17 tie with Oakland. "We're trying."

Heisman Trophy winner Jim Plunkett is the key to the New England offense. Clobbered while sacked often last year, he is healthy again after knee surgery the past winter. However, he has not shown his old rookie form so far in training.

To give Plunkett some help, Fairbanks picked blocking guard John Hannah of Alabama, running back Sam Cunningham of Southern California and wide receiver Darryl Stingley of Purdue in the first round of the draft.

The Patriots acquired three choices via trades, including one which sent Carl Garrett to the Chicago Bears. Garrett was an outstanding running back and receiver before falling into disfavor with New England last season.

Hannah looked good in his debut against Oakland, but Cunningham and Stingley have been sidelined with knee injuries.

Stingley is an outstanding prospect, but faces a fight for a regular job. Wide receivers back are Reggie Rucker, Tommy Reynolds and Randy Vataha.

Fairbanks' biggest problem may be on defense. He acquired middle linebacker Edgar Chandler from Buffalo, but has not been able to swing any other major deals. The defensive line is going to have to put more pressure on opposing quarterbacks and defensive backs are going to have to do better than last year.

At the moment, Fairbanks does not plan to install the Wishbone offense, which he made popular at Oklahoma. However, if things go bad during the season, he just may try it on occasions. That would mean Brian Dowling, the backup quarterback, at the controls because of Plunkett's vulnerable knees.

Want Browns To Refund $400,000

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— The U.S. Justice Department says the Cleveland Browns should refund up to $400,000 to its fans in a suit which charges the National Football League club with illegally raising ticket prices two years ago.

The suit, filed in U.S. District Court Friday, said ticket prices were increased by $1 or more during the 1971 price freeze, allegedly violating a requirement that sporting event prices not be raised above costs during a month-long base period earlier in 1971.

The Browns announced the ticket price increase early in 1971, before the freeze, but the government suit said the Browns first game did not occur until after the freeze began.

Browns ticket prices have not changed since 1971.

Browns owner Art Modell left Cleveland for Los Angeles Friday and was unavailable for comment. The Browns were scheduled to meet Los Angeles on the coast today in their second exhibition game of the season.

U.S. Atty. Frederick M. Coleman said the suit asks that the Browns be ordered to reimburse fans for the alleged overcharges on all tickets bought during the 90-day freeze from Aug. 5 to Nov. 12 in 1971.

Evonne Goolagong Defeats Jeanne Evert

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— Evonne Goolagong handed 15-year-old Jeanne Evert her first professional defeat Friday.

The 22-year-old Australian registered a 6-3, 6-2 victory over Miss Evert in the semifinals of the $75,000 Western Tennis Championships.

Family Winery Still In Production

SOUTH BASS ISLAND, Ohio (AP) - Progress, changing public taste, even Prohibition - none of these has left much of a mark on the old Heineman family winery on this rocky Lake Erie island.

Heineman wine is still stored in the old cellar vats Gustav Heineman pounded together back in 1888.

Grandson Louis Heineman still catches a first yeasty sample of the wine to verify its taste en route to purification and bottling..

Heineman's customers like it that way. At least, they seem to. It's one of a handful of American wineries which refuses to sell wholesale, and customers must come to the island for the wine.

Nestled into South Bass Island, bottom-most of the handful of rocky Lake Erie island which trail up from Marblehead Peninsula, the winery is in a strategic spot to bypass change.

Only the tourist - during four summer months - means more to the island than grapes. And for months at a time, when winter surrounds the island with broken ice and the ferries stop running, only airplanes keep the resident in contact with the rest of the world.

Gustav brought the winery from Germany because of the growing season, not the isolation. Heineman said the growing season is 20 days longer than it should be, that grapes grow here for nearly a month longer than as far south as Cincinnati.

Moreover, Heineman said, the brisk lake winds, the rocky soil and the humid air are perfect for grapes.

Progress came to South Bass Island in the form of automated presses that smash the grape more surely and cleanly than hand presses or islanders' feet.

But Heineman's winery proceeds at an unhurried pace, the few employes and Louis scheduling their day no further or faster than the grape requires.

At most, the winery has an annual production of 25,000 gallons, Heineman said. It has never processed more than is grown on the island's few acres of vineyards.

Prohibition, which came next, "was great," he said. "All we did was process grape juice and sell it to people. A few days of work a year."

Public taste began to change after World War 11, Heineman said, with the return of soldiers used to drinking wine in Europe.

"Now, more people are drinking wine every day," Heineman said. It has pushed Heineman's toward offering more sweet wines, since that seems to be the direction of public taste, he said.

Views On Television

NEW YORK (AP) — Alan Abel, who often pops up on radio and TV to deliver a hoax or two, last month was investigated by the Federal Bureau of Investigation about a hoax concerning the Watergate hearings.

A source close to the investigation — Abel, to be precise — says it happened a few weeks after he and a female colleague hoaxed some members of the fourth estate at a news conference in Washington, D.C.

His colleague, an actress, posed as a repentant call girl who'd been prompted by the nationally-televised Watergate hearings to come forth with her own revelations of high-level hanky-panky.

She spoke of political espionage in boudoirs, paid for by Republicans who hired her to fool around with Democartes and . by Democrates who hired her to fool around with Republicans.

The lady, who gave her dimensions as "37-24-35½," also told of one Washington orgy attended by "a who's who — in the nude, of course."

All of it was sheer imagination and the handiwork of Abel, 46, and a professional hoaxer since 1959, when he drew national attention with his campaign to clothe naked animals.

Alas, after Abel's latest caper, a prankster phoned Sen. Sam Ervin, D-N.C., head of the Senate Watergate Committee, and passed himself off successfully, if briefly, as Treasury Secretary George Schultz.

He told Ervin the White House would give the committee its secret, Watergate-related tape recordings. Ervin reported this during the hearings, but quickly learned it was a hoax. The FBI was called in.

Abel, who is serious only when emphasizing he had no part in the Ervin hoax, which violated a federal law, says the FBI apparently remembered his earlier legitimate hoax and got to wondering.

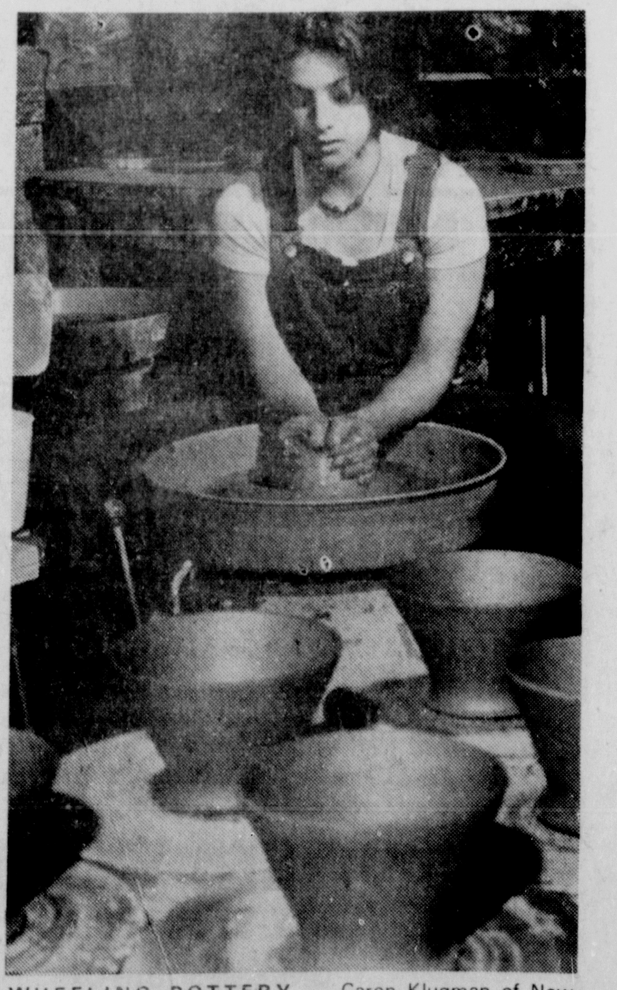

The next thing, he said, was that two FBI agents came to his Manhattan apartment, interrogated him for two hours and warned "that I was the prime suspect" in the Ervin hoax.

"I at first thought I'd interrogate them a little bit," Abel laughed. "But then I thought, 'well, I better not play around with these guys. This is business.'"

An FBI spokesman here confirmed that the agents did question Abel and that the Ervin hoax "was the thrust of their questioning."

"Most of their questioning was to pinpoint my whereabouts at the time the phone call (to Ervin) was made," Abel said. "I was able to prove the fact that at that time I was at a studio in New York, doing a telephone interview for the BBC radio.

"They were very thorough," Abel said of the agents. "They had a complete dossier on all of my activities, going all the way back to when I launched my first campaign to clothe naked animals."

God Bless The Beautiful

STANTON, Mo. (AP) — A unique poll is being conducted at Meramec Caverns on U.S. 66 here.

For the past 33 years, each tour was concluded with the playing of the record, "God Bless America." Last year, because of all the interest in ecology, the management replaced that record with "America The Beautiful."

Many tourists have protested the change of records, and others have applauded it.

Lester B. Dill, cave owner, is polling tourists to find out their preference.

If the voting is 2-1 infavor of going back to "God Bless America," Dill will once again conclude the tours with that recording.

Searchers Receive Evidence Radio Pleas Are Not Hoax

CHILILI, N.M. (AP) — With a possible new clue, searchers pressed their hunt today for a young boy whose radioed pleas for help have been heard on the citizens band since Tuesday.

State police reported late Friday that a Missouri family traveling to Arizona in a vehicle with a citizens band radio was missing.

Missouri authorities told New Mexico state police those missing were Marvin A. Fadler, 54; his wife; and his son Larry, 12.

They were reported missing by Fadler's brother, Floyd. He told Missouri authorities his brother had left Desoto, Mo., Aug. 4 en route to Phoenix and had not been heard from since. He said his brother had a heart condition.

The boy whose radioed cries for help have been picked up has identified himself as Larry. He said he is with his dead father in a wrecked pickup truck. He has provided no other information.

State Police Chief Martin Vigil said authorities have received reports that place the source of the radio pleas "in 10 different places at once."

"We're doing the best we can under some very trying and vague circumstances, and we'll stay on it until we have valid reason for increasing or stopping the search altogether."

Meanwhile, Richard Damerow of the Civil Air Patrol said the CAP would continue searching through Sunday but "then we have to go on the assumption that—without food and water—he will be dead if he ever did exist.

Silverware Salvaged From Andrea Doria

NANTUCKET, Mass. (AP) — Two former Navy divers have recovered silverware and ship fittings from the Andrea Doria in the first human foray into the Italian luxury liner since she sank 17 years ago.

Donald Rodocker, 27, and Christopher Delucci, 22, both of San Diego, Calif., cut into the port side of the foyer deck of the 11-deck ship on Friday with the help of support divers from the operations ship Narragansett.

The divers plan to cut into the ship's vaults today or Sunday. The vaults reportedly contain more than $1 million in cash, negotiable bonds and jewelry.

In all, valuables estimated at $4 million are aboard the Andrea Doria, which went down July 26, 1956, after colliding with the Swedish ship Stockholm some 40 miles south of here.

Rodocker and Delucci plan to stay under for 10 days, living in a life-supporting habitat that is attached to the liner.

They are working in 40-degree, murky water some 240 feet below the surface, using special torches to cut through the ship and special lights for illumination.

Under maritime salvage law, the divers can keep up to 50 per cent of the valuables and money recovered, with the ship's owner, the Italian Line, and its underwriters having rights to the rest.
